

Knowledgebase > FAQ > What is the difference between physical inventory and stock count?

What is the difference between physical inventory and stock count?

Megan De Freitas - 2024-12-02 - FAQ

There is a significant difference between a physical inventory and a stock count within SalesPad Cloud. Please reference the following summaries of each:

Physical Inventory Count:

- Uses iPod/iPads with a sled for scanning barcodes
- Uses the SalesPad Cloud Barcode application
- Is intended for conducting an initial count of all of your inventory
- Result in adjustments in, which appear in the SalesPad Cloud web application

Stock Count:

- Uses iPod/iPads with a sled for scanning barcodes
- Uses the SalesPad Cloud Barcode application and the SalesPad Cloud web application
- Is initiated within SalesPad Cloud
- Will display any variances in what the inventory records indicate and what was actually counted
- Result in adjustments in and out
 - Creates an adjustment in if more was counted than what inventory records indicate
 - Creates an adjustment out if less was counted than what inventory records indicate

See our Stock Counts documentation for more information.